- A: (Pause) I bought those chains, oh, I can't, it was sometime after I got here, after I got to Salt Lake City. I may have put 'em on once or twice.
- Q: Did you use them, did you use them on the Colorado trip, Ted?
- A: (Pause) As I recall, I, you know, I rather doubt it. I can't say for sure, but I mean, that's unlikely that I did just because I prefer not driving around with chains on and, it, uh, under normal circumstances I can usually get around without chains. So I expect, not likely, I would have them for an emergency occurrence if I got in a ditch and couldn't get out and had to put them on and dig myself out, but I rather doubt, I did have snow tires on the car at the time too, so they seem to help in those conditions.
- Q: Where'd you buy the chains for that little car?
- A: Here in Salt Lake. I bought them in one of the auto part places here in Salt Lake.
- Q: Don't remember which one?
- A: Somewhere out on State Street. There's a lot of auto part, auto part places I guess. I just remember on one snowy night going in and buying them, but that's the best I can do.
- Q: OK. Did you have any shot at, uh, the month or anything like that?
- A: Oh! The reason I re-, the only reason I remember buying the chains is because my girl friend was coming in for Christmas, so, and I was afraid that I'd get stuck in the snow and not be able to pick her up at the airport. 'Cause it's a big event when she comes. She came down for Christmas, so I, I bought them in around Christmas of '73.
- Q: Seventy-?
- A: Oh, pardon me, 74.
- Q: OK. I just wanted to make sure. OK.
- A: The chains should still be with the car.
- Q: Uh, have you got anything else, Bill?
- Q: No.
- A: OK. Just before this interview began, you were being questioned by Mr. Don Hall, of the Adult Probation and Parole Department?
- A: Hm. Yes, I was.
- Q: How long did he question you?
- A: Oh, an hour. I don't know, forty-five minutes. I did not have a watch on
